

You Love Someone

(Words and Music) – Thom Sebastian C 2005

You love somebody when you've come to understand
That patience is a virtue passion cannot comprehend
You've traded your illusions and the need to win the fight
For reason and the will to do what's right
You love someone – you really love someone

You love somebody when the more than meets the eye
Conveys more beauty than you ever thought you'd live to realize
When just to be means so much more than what to do
With someone you can trust as much as you
You love someone – you really love someone

When the walls come down and you throw your arms around
The only soul that sees into your own
That's where the love begins – you let somebody in
That place inside where no-one else could go
